AMEN--Take a look around the walls of your church. Even if it's only a year or two old, the word "Amen" has resounded off those walls countless times at the conclusion of the Eucharistic Prayer and as the faithful have come forward to receive the Body and Blood of Christ. Today's feast is about those "Amens" offered in faith, offered in times of trouble or doubt, spoken in joy, spoken mindlessly, but all given to God in a multitude of ways. It is our very lives that lie behind our "Amens" and are touched by the presence of Christ, the presence we celebrate today. More importantly, we celebrate the love of Christ for us shown in the sacrifice on Calvary and that he continues to give to us in every celebration of the Eucharist. What can we do but rejoice in that great love, and then go out into the world and live that love in sacrificing for others?

One day each week, the pastor set aside time to visit the parish school. During one visit he observed the children studying the states and he asked them how many they could name. They came up with about forty names. He jokingly told them that in his day students knew the names of all the states. One lad raised his hand and said, "Yes, but in those days there were only thirteen.

The Most Holy Body and Blood of Christ
June 22, 2014

Not by bread alone does one live,
but by every word that comes forth
from the mouth of the LORD.

-- Deuteronomy 8:3b

dear Padre

June 22, 2014

What is intinction?

Instead of drinking wine from the cup, why can't we just dip the consecrated host into the wine? I would think this would be more sanitary than having everyone drinking from the cup.

This way of receiving holy Communion, in which the priest or extraordinary minister of holy Communion dips the consecrated host into the consecrated wine before placing it on the communicant's tongue, is called intinction.

Communicants cannot do the dipping for two reasons: 1) the most recent version of the General Instruction on the Roman Missal doesn't give an option for communicants to dip the consecrated host; and 2) the Eucharist is supposed to be received from another person.

Recovering alcoholics and people who prefer to receive Communion in their hands don't like intinction, and some say intinction doesn't follow Jesus' instruction to drink the Precious Blood (Matthew 26:27-28).

But even if communicants were allowed to do the dipping, it wouldn't be more sanitary. Having many hands dipping into a chalice creates at least the same risk as having everyone drink from the cup and wipe the chalice rim with a purificator.

No matter how you receive the Body and Blood of Christ, the Church has long taught that to receive even a crumb of the consecrated bread or a drop of the consecrated wine is to receive Jesus Christ fully.
