Treasures from our Tradition

In the seventeenth century, English Catholics, many of them wealthy and well educated, looked to the American colonies as a place to regain a measure of religious freedom. In Ireland, the so-called penal laws were even harsher than in England, as a minority Parliament tried to force the conversion of the population by denying the majority political and economic power. Beginning in 1691, laws were passed that punished dissenters, principally Catholics, but also causing hardship for Jews, Quakers, and others. There were acts forbidding “mixed marriage” or sending children “beyond the seas” for schooling. Catholics were taxed at double the common rate, barred from the legal professions and from university, and not allowed to build churches or own a decent horse.

In 1793 the situation began to change, as it became clear that the economic persecution would not drive the majority away from Catholicism. Gradually, laws were repealed until by 1829 freedom was won, although Catholics at university were ineligible for honors, and until the 1920s when the Republic was formed, the Church of Ireland was the state church, funded by the taxes of all citizens. -James Field, Copyright © J. ### Marriage Minute

This weekend, Jesus is reminding us that our marriages are meant to point us toward eternity. Although many of us have a sense that we are supposed to help “get our spouse to heaven,” what does that actually mean? It does NOT mean dragging the other along, trying to shape them up through nagging or criticism. Rather, we accomplish this by:

- ◆ Being a mirror through which our spouse can see how beloved he/she is to God,
- ◆ Modeling the mercy of God through repeated forgiveness,
- ◆ Taking our spouse’s faults to God in prayer, asking the Holy Spirit to do the heavy lifting!

NOTE: In a healthy marriage, these positive measures over time are very effective at helping both spouses grow in holiness. But if you suspect that your spouse may be abusive, please seek help: www.archkck.org/domestic-violence

Confidence in the Lord

We are nearing the end of the liturgical year. Today’s readings remind us that our own lives will draw to a close one day, and we can be certain that the Lord will encourage, strengthen, and save us—both now and at the last. The astonishing story of the Maccabees invigorates our faith as we behold an entire family willing to die rather than deny the Law of Moses. The psalm response echoes the faithful cries of the Maccabees: “I call upon you, for you will answer me, O God.” That same confidence appears in Saint Paul’s letter to the Thessalonians. “The Lord is faithful,” he testifies; “he will strengthen you and guard you from the evil one.” In the Gospel, Jesus explains just how long God’s protection will endure. The children of God whom God guards, Jesus says, will live forever like angels. Copyright © J. S. Paluch Co.
